Mobile Appliance Repair Separate Decision Answer Key

Read only after saving an independent attempt of the fresh decision packet and its requested forms. This separate key supplies fictional teaching reasoning, not practical permission.

AP-028: a stopped visit and an unused advance

Separate grading key AP 028

Scope and the visit decision

HOLD physical filter work and the proposed return until safe access, cooled water and all actual permission and competence gates are established. Do not move the stacked appliance, force an opening or restart it to complete a form. DECLINE the unsupported internal-pump request; the extra $140 is neither approved supported work nor earned revenue. The paper authority assumption is not a real learner release.

Separate ceilings from actual earning

Preserve T028 as a rejected draft. Q028 stores ceilings of $95 and $145, while Z028 confirms actual diagnostic earning of $0. Record the diagnostic as Stopped, not Delivered. No return has occurred: its status is Not started and an actual completion date is unknown, not the proposed November 24 appointment. Do not copy either ceiling into earning or use the impossible November 20 return date. Visit control must withhold its completed linked total even though the separately evidenced aborted-visit earning is known to be $0.

Known resource and bank reconciliation at November 23

Owner value is 90/60 × $30 = $45. Add $8 fuel, $6 nonfuel vehicle use and $4 overhead: $63 known management cost for the aborted attempt. With confirmed $0 earned, the separate adverse-outcome management memo shows a $63 loss before other actual obligations; it does not label an undelivered service complete. Stock, equipment and fees contribute confirmed $0.

Bank is $500 + $60 advance − $8 fuel = $552. The whole $60 advance remains an unearned customer liability, leaving $492 after that held amount. The advance is not revenue, and the $45 owner value plus $10 allocations are not additional bank payments. Do not force this stopped record into the general fully earned-order model.

Refund evidence and recovery at November 23

The recorded November 21 initiation precedes its November 22 request and is only an unsent draft. It cannot close the advance record. Retain the contradiction and verify it; do not backdate the request or invent an initiation. The BANK028 statement confirms no refund bank debit, so the supported posted amount is numeric $0. Clear the unsupported posted date/source and do not enter the requested $60 as paid.

After documenting that the transfer draft was never sent, the actual initiation field is blank pending a real event; request November 22 and request amount $60 remain. With receipt date/source, $60 received, $0 earned and confirmed $0 posted, the advance record can show Requested; no bank debit, liability $60 and bank contribution $60. This is a valid held obligation, not a completed refund.

Apply the later supplement without rewriting history

The actual sequence is November 22 request, November 24 initiation, November 25 $20 bank posting. Keep RF028 distinct from ADV028. This is a partial posting against a $60 request: posted refund applied $20, remaining unearned liability $40 and advance bank contribution $40. Row 42 should show Partly posted; balance held.

Total bank after the supplement is $552 − $20 = $532, with $40 held for the customer and the same $492 after that held amount. No service earning appears and no extra resource cost is assumed. A remaining $40 refund or later supported earning would require its own evidence; neither is supplied.

Completion criteria for the learner’s attempt

Credit an attempt that traces every figure and decision to a named source, rejects the false delivery and impossible linked chronology, preserves the unknown actual return date, distinguishes confirmed zeros from blanks, and carries the obligation until a real bank posting. The final business/practical decision remains HOLD. A positive or reconciled money figure cannot replace the missing safe-access and actual practical-release evidence.
